BART is Coming to Livermore!

Join Us for a Series of Interactive Workshops

The City is hosting a series of workshops to discuss BART Station Area Planning. The workshops will feature presentations and opportunities for you to share your ideas about the planning of potential BART stations in Livermore. Each workshop builds on the previous one, so attendance at all three is encouraged.

WORKSHOP 1 Thursday, November 12
We will begin with presentations on station area transportation, economics, and design, followed by facilitated roundtable discussions about the desired "performance aspects" of potential station areas.

WORKSHOP 2 Thursday, December 10
We will discuss potential station "pairings" that further community goals. We will ask participants to review and comment on station area design characteristics that would best fit the character of Livermore.

WORKSHOP 3 Thursday, January 21
We will focus on visual concepts of potential station areas, and will conclude with the main points of community comments that will be included in a report to City Council.
